Material covered in syllabus was informative and engaging.

I found it to be strong course due to the professor's engagement with students and enthusiasm about the material. There were many opportunities for individual one-on-one time if needed/helpful. While condensing the material into five weeks makes for a rapid fire course, with limited opportunities for evaluation (in comparison to a class with more problem sets), it also allows for greater focus on the material, which can be useful.

Professor McKee was great! He made the material digestable and inspired me to work hard. Having shopped the same course during the school year with another professor, I found Prof. McKee's teaching style to be far more helpful and accessible, which made for a greater learning experience.

He is good at explaining things in different ways, but he is not good at properly understanding questions. He also makes a lot of simple mistakes which makes everything more confusing
